“When I retired I missed the challenge and social interactions of work. Then I heard about the Osher Lifelong Learning Institute at Johns Hopkins University, a community of retired professionals who love learning. After one semester of courses in politics, art, history, literature, science and more, plus trips and social events—I was hooked!

Staying mentally active and being part of a learning community are keys to a healthy retirement. The Osher at JHU program provides this and more. It’s one of the best parts of my retirement.”
