International photojournalist Essdras Suarez takes a break in his travel calendar to visit Osher at JHU. Come and experience the world as seen through the lens of a professional photographer, as he shares the stories behind some of his most iconic photos.

Suarez has traveled the world documenting stories for publications such as National Geographic, New York Times, and the Washington Post. He also travels with photo aficionados teaching them how to best capture a place and its inhabitants while learning about local culture, customs and practices.
